The following applies to the use of Volvo Construction Equipment guideline times

Listed times indicate guideline times for maintenance and repairs of machines manufactured by Volvo CE (Volvo Construction Equipment AB).

Guideline time is the time that the mechanic normally needs to perform an operation according to the instructions normally found in each machine's service manual or component manual, and that is performed according to the conditions listed below.

Feedback address for Time Guide: servicemanuals@volvo.com

Applicability

The time for performing an operation varies with a number of parameters, e.g., environment (where the work is done), training and equipment. Guideline times are developed with the following conditions:

- Workshop in an indoor environment with a solid and level concrete floor.
- Workshop equipped with lifting device that has lifting capacity and lifting height adapted to a majority of operations (except lifting complete machine units/machine frames) performed on machines handled by the workshop.
- Use of approved support and lifting equipment, in addition to the equipment indicated in each machine's service manual.
- Workshop equipped with compressed air, electricity and lighting.
- Use of indicated Volvo CE special tools.
- Tools stored in easily accessed location, in the immediate vicinity of the workplace.
- Where applicable, oils/fluids are handled in an environmentally correct manner.

For guideline times to apply it is required, in addition to the above conditions, that the mechanic has the training and experience required for the machine and the work that is being done (e.g., Basic Course Electricity and hydraulics as well as machine course step 1 Volvo CE Service school).

Guideline times apply when one person performs the operation. However, in the operations actions may be performed that require help from another person. In these cases, the time for that step which requires two persons has been doubled. The guideline times do not apply if more than one mechanic performs the entire operation.

Actions not included in guideline times are:

- Transport of machine to and from workshop site.
- Troubleshooting not described as a separate operation.
- Retrieval of spare parts, consumables and tools that are not stored in easily accessed location.
- Washing of the whole or parts of the machine before repair/maintenance.
- Actions that due to deformation, corrosion or external damage increase the repair time.
- Additional work that due to retrofitted equipment reduces access, unless these work steps are mentioned in the method description in each service manual.

Other

For every operation there is an operation number, heading and guideline time. The description for how the work is done is normally found in the service manual for each machine under the corresponding operation number.

Foreword

New format of operation number

In the time guide, each operation number has a heading with a three-digit function group number (see function group below) as well as a three-digit running number.

Example: Op no. 210-070 Engine removing

210-	070
Function group	Running number (Sequential number)

Example of discontinued op. no. is 21070 alt. 21070-1 (Engine removing).

Function group:

According to Volvo Construction Equipment function group index, where the first digit indicates section and is divided in the following functions, which follows the same design as other service information:

1. Standard parts, service
2. Engine with mounting and equipment
3. Elec.system; Warning system; Information system; Instruments
4. Power transmission
5. Brakes
6. Steering
7. Frame; Springs; Damping; Axle suspension; Wheel/track unit
8. Machinery house; Cab; Exterior trim parts anywhere
9. Hydraulic system; Digging/handling/grading equipment; Misc. Equip. hydraulics

The second and third digit (10) indicate sub-group, which in turn divides the functions within the group, also this follows the same design as other service information.

Running number:

Running number or sequential number 001 to 899 (in the example 070) is a number to identify each operation.

Other

Equipment:

Running number 901 to 999 are reserved for installation times for equipment (installation instructions).

Earlier (discontinued) format of operation numbers:

From 2005-03-08, only the new format for operation numbers shall be used, with the exception of operations for VCADS Pro. Already published service information makes use of the earlier format for operation numbers.

VCADS Pro:

For the time being, VCADS Pro operations will adhere to the same design as before, XXXXX-X, and will have a code digit (-3) for test procedures.

The following applies to the use of Volvo Construction Equipment guideline times

Listed times indicate guideline times for maintenance and repairs of machines manufactured by Volvo CE (Volvo Construction Equipment AB).

Guideline time is the time that the mechanic normally needs to perform an operation according to the instructions normally found in each machine's service manual or component manual, and that is performed according to the conditions listed below.

Feedback address for Time Guide: servicemanuals@volvo.com

Applicability

The time for performing an operation varies with a number of parameters, e.g., environment (where the work is done), training and equipment. Guideline times are developed with the following conditions:

- Workshop in an indoor environment with a solid and level concrete floor.
- Workshop equipped with lifting device that has lifting capacity and lifting height adapted to a majority of operations (except lifting complete machine units/machine frames) performed on machines handled by the workshop.
- Use of approved support and lifting equipment, in addition to the equipment indicated in each machine's service manual.
- Workshop equipped with compressed air, electricity and lighting.
- Use of indicated Volvo CE special tools.
- Tools stored in easily accessed location, in the immediate vicinity of the workplace.
- Where applicable, oils/fluids are handled in an environmentally correct manner.

For guideline times to apply it is required, in addition to the above conditions, that the mechanic has the training and experience required for the machine and the work that is being done (e.g., Basic Course Electricity and hydraulics as well as machine course step 1 Volvo CE Service school).

Guideline times apply when one person performs the operation. However, in the operations actions may be performed that require help from another person. In these cases, the time for that step which requires two persons has been doubled. The guideline times do not apply if more than one mechanic performs the entire operation.

Actions not included in guideline times are:

- Transport of machine to and from workshop site.
- Troubleshooting not described as a separate operation.
- Retrieval of spare parts, consumables and tools that are not stored in easily accessed location.
- Washing of the whole or parts of the machine before repair/maintenance.
- Actions that due to deformation, corrosion or external damage increase the repair time.
- Additional work that due to retrofitted equipment reduces access, unless these work steps are mentioned in the method description in each service manual.

Other

For every operation there is an operation number, heading and guideline time. The description for how the work is done is normally found in the service manual for each machine under the corresponding operation number.

Foreword

New format of operation number

In the time guide, each operation number has a heading with a three-digit function group number (see function group below) as well as a three-digit running number.

Example: Op no. 210-070 Engine removing

210-	070
Function group	Running number (Sequential number)

Example of discontinued op. no. is 21070 alt. 21070-1 (Engine removing).

Function group:

According to Volvo Construction Equipment function group index, where the first digit indicates section and is divided in the following functions, which follows the same design as other service information:

1. Standard parts, service
2. Engine with mounting and equipment
3. Elec.system; Warning system; Information system; Instruments
4. Power transmission
5. Brakes
6. Steering
7. Frame; Springs; Damping; Axle suspension; Wheel/track unit
8. Machinery house; Cab; Exterior trim parts anywhere
9. Hydraulic system; Digging/handling/grading equipment; Misc. Equip. hydraulics

The second and third digit (10) indicate sub-group, which in turn divides the functions within the group, also this follows the same design as other service information.

Running number:

Running number or sequential number 001 to 899 (in the example 070) is a number to identify each operation.

Other

Equipment:

Running number 901 to 999 are reserved for installation times for equipment (installation instructions).

Earlier (discontinued) format of operation numbers:

From 2005-03-08, only the new format for operation numbers shall be used, with the exception of operations for VCADS Pro. Already published service information makes use of the earlier format for operation numbers.

VCADS Pro:

For the time being, VCADS Pro operations will adhere to the same design as before, XXXXX-X, and will have a code digit (-3) for test procedures.
